

AMAC Aerospace Switzerland Completes First B747-8i In VVIP Configuration

AMAC Aerospace Switzerland has completed and returned to service its first B747-8i in a VVIP project configuration. It was a two-year project. The company said it is the first completion center to redeliver an aircraft of this size and complexity. The cabin is decorated with custom furniture, monuments, exotic materials, artwork, live TV, showers, beds and galleys. It also has peripheral cameras around the aircraft's exterior and is equipped with SATCOM and additional water tanks. AMAC Aerospace offers narrow and widebody VIP completions and maintenance for the corporate and private aviation market. It was founded in 2007 in Basel, Switzerland.
